Chapter 1 by Cat4055

That's right, I'm making another one. DUN DUN DUNNNNN. Guys, I am gulps a fan fiction writer. That's right. I bet that you never thought that I could write everything wrong with fan fiction when I myself am an obsessive fan fiction writer. I'm sorry fan fiction but it is my duty to get people to understand everything that is wrong with every genre. I honestly think that I'm going to cry while making this one because I've probably done all of these things as well. Anyways, this is not actually a fan fiction piece as you have probably guessed, it's an everything some genre has done wrong piece. Also that DUNNNNNN has weird things come up in spell check. There is DUNNING, DUNNED, DUNNER, and DUNNE. Does anyone even know what those words mean? If so please send me a msg so that I can use the words in a fan fiction I will write. I mean that I will, you know what, forget it, I'm just going to the list.

- 1.OMG wait, I can't find anything wrong with fan fiction. Just let me think for a moment. I guess you base ALL of the main characters off of people you know. I mean, when I write fan fiction literally ALL my characters are based off of people I know.
- 2. I'm eating chili and it tastes delicious.
- 3.I'm serious the chili is the best thing ever.

- 9. You put the lime in the coconut, you put the lime in the coconut...
- 10. I managed to survive writing this by only having one thing wrong with fan fiction.

I'm sorry those of you who actually red this and I know that you almost died while reading it because I can't write this decently because of my love of fan fiction. I hope, as always, that you write better fan fiction because of my list of randomness and I will probably do my next one on romance so keep a look out for that. I'm sorry for the terrible list and I hope that you will read my other ones because they are actually kinda good. One last thing, type Illuminati backwards into google.It's scary what comes up.

Chapter 2 by antidevil

I sat back, and watched the screen. I waited, and waited. The replies were imminent, weren't they? The chili was dripping down my chin at a glacial pace. Surely someone had read what I had written. Maybe it was the tone. Maybe I didn't get the tone right at all. Maybe it was them. Yes, it was them. It wasn't the tone, it was the reader, the audience. They didn't appreciate me, or what I had written, or my sense of humor. They didn't understand me, and that's what happens when you put your pearls before the swine!

I was about to close the browser, when I saw that there was a single reply. An addition. Something strange, and even a little sinister. Something that was mocking what I had written. They were even trying to put words into my mouth, toying with my idea, and my agency. What sort of sick, twisted individual would do this to me? I gasped-- was it my gasp, or was it that fiend, writing a gasp into my lungs and forcing me to expel it?

My head swam with the possibilities. What if it wasn't just this one instance. What if everything that I had written was just itself being written by another writer, and where does that chain stop? What if someone were writing that other writer's writings of me? The room began to spin. My pulse began to race. My mouth was dry, my nose was wet. My tail was wagging.

I had become a dog quite suddenly. I needed an explanation, but could find none written in

Chapter 4 by Cat4055

I stared at the screen in horror. How dare someone think they could say 'love' in one of my stories. I shuddered at the thought. I despised romance, at least the genre, and wanted nothing to do with it.

Chapter 5 by Bryson Dunsmore

I was trying to the thought out of my head, but it just wouldn't let go-Eh, screw it, let's just go back to dogs and Doglish...Arf Ruff Ruuf Aruu-this is even more boring-I just need to figure out the impossibilities of the fourth wall breakin-WAIT, I'M DOING IT RIGHT NOW-I mean I'm using too many dashes.
